Compassionate, understanding and experienced, the Paul L. Gravenor Home for Funerals has been a source of care and service in the Ephrata community for more than 50 years.

The staff of Paul L. Gravenor Home for Funerals carries on the tradition started by the late Paul L. Gravenor. Paul's son-in-law, John A. Leonhard is the firm's Funeral Director and Owner and Paul's grandson, Paul Andrew Leonhard serves as Licensed Supervisor. Truly a family run business, they provide a wide range of funeral services, including traditional burial, cremation, and funeral pre-planning.

"Saying goodbye is one of the most difficult challenges we ever face in life," says Paul Andrew Leonhard, adding that they strive to provide the comfort and compassion that is so essential when families deal with loss.

Well into the third generation of a commitment to providing services that are dignified, personal and affordable, the Paul L. Gravenor Home For Funerals helps each family remember their loved ones in a meaningful way.

Based on its heritage of compassion, Paul L. Gravenor Home for Funerals, is also up to date on the most advanced ways of helping families with difficult decisions. The York Merchandising System is an innovative way to make it easier for families to select caskets and other funeral service products. The system provides a one-room concept that helps to create a more relaxed, less intimidating atmosphere, with better decision-making tools that are easier to understand.

"People actually want to go in and experience the room," notes John Leonhard, "and they are better informed about their purchasing decisions with this new system."
